

Vote for my row!

Creative Grid has sponsored a Row Challenge and our row has been selected for the contest! Last year we participated, but we didn't know we had been selected until right at the end of the voting period. This time we have until the end of the Row By Row Experience to get the vote out.

You can go to Creative Grid's Facebook page to see all of the rows entered into the contest. You need to click "Like" to vote. You can vote for as many rows as you like.

Or you can just vote for mine. :)

To make it easy for you to find my block, you can click on the link below.

June 24, 2016

So there is this headline that announces: How to appear more intelligent. And I'm thinking, this I gotta read.

First, don't use words like "gotta". Okay, that's not part of the list, but I figure really smart people don't say "gotta." So that must mean..... We won't go into that.

So to the list, or my interpretation of it. May you all be the smarter for it.

1. Listen. This means keep your mouth shut. If you speak up about something and you don't know what you're talking about, you won't sound very smart. Duh. Now the list simply suggests that you listen, don't comment on everything other than the things that you know about. And when nothing comes up that you are knowledgeable about, ask questions. This doesn't make you sound smarter, but it encourages the other person to talk and you can go back to.....keeping your mouth shut.

2. Stand tall. But not too tall. Seriously, that's the advice. If you remember from last week, my New Year's Resolution was to get taller. What I didn't know at the time was that it would make me appear smarter. An added benefit. Actually, this piece of advice just means, don't slump. If you stand tall, you are confident which gives you credibility. If you stand too tall-kinda like the Celtic Women when they sing (you gotta watch the older videos to get this) - it makes you look like you are nervous. The advice? Stand somewhere in the middle of tall.

3. Don't use crutch words, like like, or um, or gotta or kinda. Don't go Valley girl and end your sentences in a high tone, like you're asking a question.

4. Take your time when speaking. That helps you avoid the ums and likes. But this is tricky. If you pause in the middle of your story, there is always someone just waiting to jump in. They haven't been listening to what you are saying, they're just listening for a pause so they can talk. If this happens, go back to advice point #1.

5. Read more. Now this advice point suggests that you read at least one important thing/article every week. I'm guessing that this 8-point list is not one of those articles. I'll also hazard a guess that anything on the front page of msn.com doesn't qualify either. Neither will most of the stuff on the news. Perhaps a book?

6. Take control of the conversation. Now the article suggests that if you're talking with a nuclear scientist who is discussing the latest find in her field, and you have no clue about Einstein, bring up a topic that you do know: "I had a roommate who studied nuclear science but now she's a Spinning Instructor. Do you spin?" Now, I'm sure this tactic will work to convince the nuclear scientist that you are smart. Yup.

7. Don't use words that belong to an SAT high school test. Apparently, using big words make you sound like you're trying too hard. So use the KISS system. Now, I will admit that when I encounter someone who assumes that because I run a quilt store I only possess "women's" skills: cooking, cleaning, sewing. Now, don't send me letters - because I know you know the type. So when I feel like I'm being condescended to, I whip out my big girl vocabulary & go to town. It's actually kinda fun.

8. Final tip: Wear glasses. You could also add, dye your hair brown. Okay, now you can send letters

Road Trip! Row by Row! Opera!

What do these 3 things have in common?
Lots of fun, good food, beautiful scenery, wonderful music. Aug. 18-21.

Santa Fe hosts an open air opera season during the summer. For those of you unfamiliar with the Santa Fe Opera, it is recognized as one of the world's leading cultural festivals.

And to get to Santa Fe, we'll be stopping at as many participating Row By Row shops as possible: Pueblo, Colorado Springs, Raton, Taos, Santa Fe, Las Vegas, Albuquerque and potentially others if there is time.

Here's the plan: Depart 7 a.m. Cheyenne Aug. 18 (Thursday). First stop Colorado Springs. Then on to Pueblo and Raton.

We'll spend the night in Cimarron, NM (no quilt shop, sorry). Then it's through the Cimarron Canyon, on our way to Taos for lunch, shopping & Row By Row quilt stores (Taos).

Then onto Santa Fe and/or Albuquerque. There are quilt stores in Albuquerque, Santa Fe and Los Alamos. I plan to stay in Santa Fe 2 nights (Friday and Saturday).

Saturday we can spend going to quilt stores or looking around Santa Fe or both. That night is the opera Don Giovanni at 8.

Sunday we come home. We'll stop at Ruth's Stichery in Colorado Spring on the way home.

It's ambitious. It's jam packed with stuff to do. And it's the perfect time of year to visit Santa Fe.

Cost: $650 Includes: Ticket to Opera (basic upper level seats), 3 hotel nights (double occupancy), van & gas. Food and fabric, on your own.

Dates: Aug. 18-21.

I need to know no later than June 30 if you want to go. I know it's quick, but I need to rent the van, hold the hotels and buy the Opera tickets. $300 will hold your spot. Final payment due before the trip starts.

June Classes & Special Events

Bertie's Year & Companions last Friday of the month, 1-4 $20, free if you buy the kit

Bertie's Year & Purfectly Pieced are small wall hangings, (or you can make each block into a mini quilt for display each month). Bertie is done in flannels and wool (kit only includes flannel). Bertie (the bird) and friends (squirrel, pumpkins) are appliqued with crazy quilt embroidery embellishments. The patterns are by Bonnie Sullivan, and you can do any of the series-she has a spring, summer, fall & winter Bertie's, plus the original, and plus the cats. You choose. Class is ongoing-because we need the time to get the embellishing done!

Friday Nighters Fri. June 24 5:30-? $10 Barb Boyer

This class will help you get organized for Christmas 2015 -- or just help you get things done. You give me a list of your "to dos" or unfinished projects you want to finish and then each month I check off what you've completed. Trust me. If you need incentive to stay on track, this is it. You can bring your sewing machine or do hand work.
